EMMY WINS FOR BLUEGRASS UNDERGROUND

Todd Jarrell & Todd Mayo

Bluegrass Underground Season V won two Midsouth Emmy Awards for Entertainment and Technical Achievement for its fifth season on PBS, a season that included the first Bluegrass Underground primetime special. The two awards make a total of 15 Emmys received by the program, which has been described as “Austin City Limits meets NOVA,” due to its unique combination of cutting-edge roots music, state-of-the-art lighting, sound and direction and the unparalleled natural beauty of the show’s setting, The Volcano Room at Cumberland Caverns.

Season VII is scheduled for filming this March 24, 25 and 26, featuring The Mavericks, Kasey Chambers, The McCrary Sisters, Rhonda Vincent & The Rage, Marty Stuart & The Fabulous Superlatives, Blues Traveler and many more of today’s top bluegrass and Americana artists.

Accepting the Entertainment Emmy on behalf of the “Bluegrass Underground family,” BGU show founder and co-producer Todd Mayo happily summed up the night, “We’re so proud and pleased to be able to shine a light on wonderful music on PBS in a cave.”

“I’m so excited about the many regional Emmys that the series Bluegrass Underground continues to win!” commented WCTE’s President and CEO, Becky Magura. “WCTE is the recipient of the Emmy this year for Entertainment thanks to this remarkable series. Our partnership with Executive Producers/Creators, Todd Jarrell and Todd Mayo continues to grow with this series, plus new work as well. We congratulate the entire Bluegrass Underground team and family for producing such an American treasure from our beloved Upper Cumberland home!”

In addition to its Bluegrass Underground honors, Todd Squared, the production company of Todd Mayo and Todd Jarrell, received the Emmy for Special Event Coverage for Nitty Gritty Dirt Band & Friends – Fifty Years, Circlin’ Back!, an all-star concert at the Ryman. THANK YOU FRANKLIN FIXTURES

WCTE's production team was given the very first of a new type of table designed by Christine Heart and constructed by Franklin Fixtures of Cookeville. "We were thrilled to help WCTE improve their work environment," says Corey Stevens from Franklin Fixtures. The table can be a sitting or standing workstation and is designed to allow a decent workspace for multiple people without taking up too much space while still allowing everyone to face each other for better communication. Franklin Fixtures is a full-service store fixture manufacturer and one-stop source for all display and workplace fixture needs. This same table designed for WCTE and more work or store fixtures are available by going to franklinfixtures.com or calling them at 931-400-0300.

EDUCATION TEAM RECEIVES HONORS

by Matt Brown

(L-R) Join Cindy Putman as she hosts Get Ready To Learn at 9:30am on Saturday mornings and Dr. Hannah Rawiszer on WCTE on the Radio at 9am on WHUB, 107.7FM & 1400AM.

WCTE's Ready To Learn Project Manager Cindy Putman was recently honored by Highlands Residential Services for her hard work with Kids Matter, an after-school reading program.

Cindy Putman and Community Collaboratives for Early Learning Media (CCELM) members work with Kids Matter, an after-school reading program for grades K-4 in Cookeville's Pine Avenue area. She and the students enjoy PBS KIDS story-time, reading, games, arts, crafts, and exploring PBS KIDS on-air and online via mobile devices housed in WCTE's Mobile Learning Lab. "This is my second year partnering with these students and their families," says Putman. "In addition to this after-school program, I've also worked with the students during the Summer Day Camp."

Dr. Hannah Rawiszer, WCTE's Director of Education and Community Engagement, was asked to serve on the Executive Committee of NETA's Community Engagement Council.

The National Educational Telecommunications Association (NETA) is a professional association that serves public television licensees and educational entities in all 50 states, the U.S. Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico. "It is an honor and a privilege to have been asked to serve on the Executive Committee of NETA's Community Engagement Council," says Dr. Rawiszer. "It's a big responsibility to be one of the voices of the Upper Cumberland and I'm happy to make sure that we're heard on a national level."

WCTE STUDENT INTERN CARMEN RAMEY

Hello! My name is Carmen Ramey and I'm a senior at Tennessee Tech University, majoring in Sociology with a concentration in Social Work. I am very excited to be an intern with WCTE this semester as I work alongside Hannah and Cindy. I heard about this internship opportunity from Jessika Chubb, who once was an intern at WCTE and now works for the station. During this internship, I hope to experience new things based on the way children learn and apply their knowledge. I'm very excited to see how WCTE will help me grow!

WCTE STUDENT INTERN MICHAEL BRANDON

I am a senior at Cookeville High School planning on going to TTU for my PTA, then transferring to University of Tennessee Knoxville to finish out my undergraduate. After my 4 years as an undergrad, I want to go to ETSU to get my degree in Physical Therapy. The film industry is one of my hobbies, especially the production side of things. I think WCTE will help me achieve so many personal goals and teach me new things. I'm super excited to be a part of the WCTE team.

ARTISTS IN OUR LOBBY

by Matt Brown

If you stop by our Broad street office (229 E Broad Street), you'll see something special on display in our lobby. For the months of March and April, WCTE will host art done by senior citizens from the Infinity Adult Day Services Art Therapy class.

"Art can help people communicate even when they're older and have trouble saying anything," says Amy Callahan, Director and Art Therapist at Infinity Adult Day Services. "I taught a class with an elderly man who had dementia and could no longer communicate but he picked up his brush and painted the most interesting sunflower with colors that he chose himself. I think senior citizens need that artistic stimulation. It makes them happier and helps them live better lives."

Amy retired from her career in law to search for a way to help elderly people. Then she found Infinity Adult Day Services and began as an art therapist, teaching art classes to elderly people.

"It's a wonderful way to keep elderly family members in your home. Often times I see that people can hardly keep up with their own lives while taking care of their older family members, not to mention the fact their older family members become sedentary in their own homes. When senior citizens come to enjoy our services, they get out and see people and move around instead of just staying at home. Not to mention it takes some of the strain off of their families."

As the new Congress and President begin their work, we hope that you will help us keep WCTE-TV and public media strong in 2017.

"It's important for our viewers and members within the Upper Cumberland to remember that any discussion about defunding PBS or privatizing CPB is not just a national discussion, but a local one," commented WCTE's President & CEO, Becky Magura.

"The impact of a decision like this would be devastating to the service WCTE brings our region in education, tourism, local content, national programming and public safety. We encourage you to make sure our local, state and nationally elected leaders know the importance of WCTE to you and to the Upper Cumberland!"

New National Survey Shows 73% of Voters Oppose Eliminating Federal Funding for Public Television

A new national survey conducted jointly by leading Republican and Democratic researchers reveals that voters across the political spectrum overwhelmingly oppose eliminating federal funding for public television. More than 7 in 10 see public television as a good or excellent value for their tax dollars, on par with investments in highways, roads and bridges.

Key findings of the survey include:

73% of voters oppose eliminating federal funding for public television and GOP voters oppose it by almost a 2-1 margin (62%-32%).

Public television is rated as an excellent or good value for their tax dollars by 72% of voters, on par with highways, roads and bridges (73%). Among GOP voters, public television received higher taxpayer value ratings than unemployment benefits, federal aid to college students, agricultural subsidies, environmental protection, and foreign aid.

3 in 4 voters want federal funding for public television increased or maintained at current levels. 66% who voted for President Trump favor increasing or maintaining federal funding for public television, as do 86% of those who voted for Hillary Clinton.

83% of voters – including 70% of those who voted for President Trump and 93% of those that voted for Hillary Clinton – say they would tell their elected representatives to find other places in the budget to save money if asked their opinion about eliminating federal funding for public television. This holds true regionally in the Northeast (88%), South (80%), Midwest (82%) and West (84%). Notably, this number is even higher among voters in states that flipped from blue to red in the 2016 election, with 85% of voters wanting savings to come from somewhere other than public television.

More than 8 in 10 voters have a great deal or fair amount of concern that ending federal funding for public television could eliminate local stations' public safety communications services like AMBER Alerts and severe weather warnings. Similarly, 76% of voters express concern about public television having to significantly cut educational shows that help children prepare for success in school.

2 in 3 voters think it is very or fairly important for America to have a strong public television system.

PBS/public television enjoys a very high image rating among the electorate (69% positive v. 7% negative). Among those that voted for President Trump, PBS/public television has a much higher positive image rating (60%) than the traditional broadcast.

A top reason for protecting federal funding for public television is that it provides more than 120,000 trusted learning tools and free resources for teachers, parents, and caregivers to use in the classroom and at home. 67% of Republicans, 73% of independents, and 87% of Democrats found this to be a convincing reason.

Arguments for eliminating federal funding for public television do not resonate strongly with voters of any political affiliation. Common arguments for eliminating federal funding for public television, such as the number of channels available on cable and other pay television services, were found convincing by just 21%-26% of voters.

Do you value public broadcasting? Then make YOUR voice heard!

Go to protectmypublicmedia.org or 170millionamericans.org or email us at the station and tell us what impact WCTE has made on you and your family at jpitts@wcte.org.

PERFECT 36: When Women Won The Vote

Sunday, March 26 - 5:30pm
Thursday, March 30 - 7pm

Of all the battles waged on Nashville's doorstep, the final throes for the passage of the 19th Amendment were among the most heated, controversial and colorful. In July of 1920, all eyes were on the Tennessee capital as anti- and pro-suffragists each fought for their vision of a socially evolving United States.

PERFECT 36: WHEN WOMEN WON THE VOTE chronicles the dramatic vote to ratify this amendment, and the years of debate about women's suffrage that preceded it.

On July 17, 1920, Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, arrived to spend a few days in Nashville. She was traveling on the heels of Tennessee Governor A.H. Roberts' announcement of a special session of the state legislature, called at the urging of President Woodrow Wilson. One more state needed to ratify the proposed amendment, and that duty rested solely on the shoulders of Tennessee.

Catt's few days dragged into weeks at her headquarters in the Hermitage Hotel, where pro- and anti-suffragists continued to clash in what came to be known as the "War of the Roses." Those in favor sported yellow roses. Those against wore red.

On the sweltering day of August 18, 1920, the House convened. After two consecutive 48-48 outcomes to table the resolution, it was put to a vote. The votes were coming in neck and neck. At the last minute, 24-year-old freshman representative Harry Burn recalled a letter from his mother received that morning, urging him to, "be a good boy" and grant women the right to vote. In spite of wearing a red rose, Burn swung his vote, making Tennessee the deciding 36th state to enable passage of the 19th Amendment, and thereby granting women the Constitutional right to vote.

Call The Midwife (Season 6)

Sundays, April 2-May 21

It's now 1962 and times are changing, from the beacon of the contraceptive pill and the shadow of infamous gangsters to the new welfare policies introduced by the government. Back in Poplar, when the rather austere Sister Ursula is appointed the new head of Nonnatus House, Sister Julianne finds herself demoted and back working alongside the midwives as an ordinary member of staff. She is not the only one to face challenges closer to home. As they strive to help mothers and families cope with the demands of childbearing, disability, disease and social prejudice, our beloved medics must make choices – and fight battles – of their own. Season 6 sees them laugh together, cry together, and pull together, supporting each other as never before.

HOME FIRES (Final Season)

Sundays, April 2-May 7

The moving drama, hailed as “irresistible” by The Wall Street Journal, returns for a final season. Home Fires follows the story of a group of inspirational women in an English village during World War II. As the conflict takes hold and the separation from their husbands, fathers, sons and brothers becomes more painful, the women rely on one another and the friendships forged through village life. Samantha Bond (Downton Abbey) and Francesca Annis (Reckless) head the extraordinary cast.

NEWTOWN

Monday, April 3

On December 14, 2012, a disturbed young man committed a horrific mass shooting in Newtown, Connecticut, that took the lives of 20 elementary school children and six educators. Kim A. Snyder's searing new documentary Newtown, filmed over the course of nearly three years, uses deeply personal, never-before-heard testimonies to relate the aftermath of the deadliest mass shooting of schoolchildren in American history. Through raw and heartbreaking interviews with parents, siblings, teachers, doctors and first responders, Newtown documents a traumatized community still reeling from the senseless tragedy, fractured by grief but driven toward a sense of purpose.

There are no words of compassion or reassurance that can bring back those who lost their lives during the shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary School. Instead, Snyder delves into the lives and homes of those who remain, all of whom have been indelibly changed by the events. They speak candidly about their grief, anger and disbelief over what occurred and their disappointment that nothing has truly changed with regard to the country's legal response to gun violence. Newtown bears witness to their profound grief and allows it to reverberate within our collective conscience, exploring what happens to a community after it becomes the epicenter of a national discussion and what it must cope with after the cameras leave.

HOLOCAUST ESCAPE TUNNEL

Wednesday, April 19

In the heart of Lithuania, what is now a peaceful forest called Ponar was once Ground Zero for Hitler's Final Solution. Here, before death camps and gas chambers, the Nazis shot as many as 100,000 people, mostly Jews, in systematic executions, and then hid the evidence of the mass murder. In June 2016, the PBS science series NOVA—produced by WGBH Boston—joined an international team of archeologists on an expedition to locate the last traces of a vanished people: the Jews of Vilnius, the capital of Lithuania, known in colloquial Yiddish as Vilna.

In the process, they made an extraordinary find—a hidden escape tunnel dug by Jewish prisoners at the Ponar death pits. In a powerful new film, HOLOCAUST ESCAPE TUNNEL, NOVA reveals the dramatic discovery and shares incredible stories from the descendants of this unique group of Holocaust survivors. The documentary takes viewers on a scientific quest to unveil the secret history of Vilna and shed light on a nearly forgotten chapter of the Holocaust.

"Following a unique group of archeologists whose advanced scientific tools revealed an escape tunnel buried for more than 70 years allowed NOVA to take viewers straight into the heart of the story to learn the truth of what really happened to a vibrant culture that vanished," said Paula S. Apsell, Senior Executive Producer, NOVA. "While memories may fade as more survivors of this dark era leave us, we now have hard evidence to preserve the historical record for future generations and ensure these tragedies will never be forgotten."

"I want young people to know that the world is a much bigger place than the spot they are occupying at this time."

Pauline believes PBS programs keep her connected to what's happening in her community and the world, and she wants to ensure these programs remain available for current and future generations.

That's why she has decided to leave her PBS station a gift in her will.

The Bad Kids

By Keith Fulton & Lou Pepe

Located in an impoverished Mojave Desert community, Black Rock Continuation High School is an alternative for at-risk students with little hope of graduating from a traditional high school. It's their last chance. This coming of age story shows extraordinary educators and talented students combat the crippling effects of poverty.

National Bird

By Sonia Kennebeck

National Bird follows whistleblowers who, despite possible consequences, are determined to break the silence around one of the most controversial issues of our time: the secret U.S. drone war. The film gives rare insight through the eyes of both survivors and veterans who suffer from PTSD while plagued by guilt over participating in the killing of faceless people in foreign countries.

THE GREAT WAR

APRIL 10, 11 & 12 8pm

pbs.org/thegreatwar
#GreatWarPBS

Premiering in conjunction with the 100th anniversary of America's entry into WWI on April 6, 1917, "The Great War" tells the rich and complex story of World War I through the voices of nurses, journalists, aviators and the American troops who came to be known as "doughboys."

This is the story of little-known heroism and sacrifice (including the deadliest battle in American history) that would leave more than 53,000 men dead on the battlefield and more than 60,000 dead from disease. American fatalities would come at a critical time in the war, but they would be dwarfed by a cataclysm of violence that would ultimately claim over 15 million lives.

EPISODE 1 - In August 1914, a war unprecedented in size and violence broke out on the European continent. Three thousand miles away, President Woodrow Wilson sat at his wife's bedside as she lay dying. Heartbroken and distracted, but ever the idealistic diplomat, Wilson vowed to keep his country out of "the Great War."

By 1916, there was a growing sense that the European war was coming closer to home. German spies seemed to be around every corner, a national hysteria fanned by the press. Record-setting numbers of Americans marched in parades, vowing to be prepared if war came. That November, Wilson won re-election with the campaign slogan: "He Kept Us Out of War." Less than a month after his second inaugural, Wilson found himself on the brink of war. The Germans resumed a policy of "unrestricted submarine warfare" and began once again sending American ships to the bottom, while the British intercepted a secret telegram disclosing Germany's efforts to persuade Japan and Mexico to declare war on the U.S. On April 2nd, Wilson appeared in front of a solemn joint session of Congress and asked for a declaration of war against Germany, proclaiming that "the world must be made safe for democracy."

EPISODE 2 - In the spring of 1917, the United States was utterly unprepared for war. Its army ranked 17th in the world, behind Serbia's. France and Britain were dubious about America's might. At home, Congress and the American people remained deeply divided about going to war.

Wilson knew he needed to sell the war, and quickly. He turned to a former journalist, George Creel, to head the newly-created Committee on Public Information. Only days after the declaration of war, Creel launched an unprecedented propaganda campaign that brought artists, writers, and Hollywood into the fold. The blizzard of positive information about the war left little doubt that it was every American's patriotic duty to get in line and support the war. For those who resisted the patriotic fervor, the consequences could be severe.

Episode Two charts America's entry into the conflict, examining the breathtaking speed of mobilization and the profound transformations required if America was to play a central role in the Great War.

EPISODE 3 - President Wilson had given General Pershing just one directive: help win the war so that Wilson could set the terms for peace. The general had waited for more than a year to launch the attack as he built an army two million strong and devised plans he believed would bring a swift end to the war.

It was not to be. Only hours after launching the offensive, Pershing's troops were bogged down, sinking in mud, their transport ensnared, their spirits dampened. It was exactly the outcome Pershing had sworn to avoid.

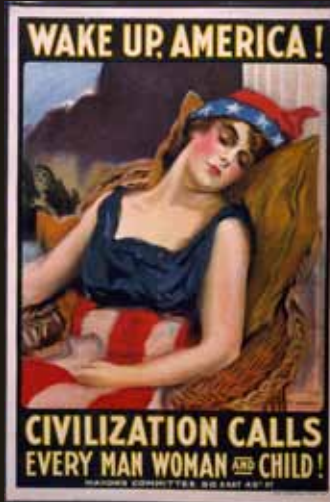

Back in the United States, a deadly new enemy swept through cities and military camps: the flu. At the front, more American soldiers were killed by the flu than in combat.

Wilson had gone to war in order to shape the peace, and when the tide turned the Germans reached out to him. The Americans, they believed, would be less vindictive than the British and the French: they wanted a cease-fire on Wilson's terms.

At 11:00 a.m. on November 11, 1918, the guns fell silent along the Western Front. The war was over and some 50,000 doughboys lay dead on the field of honor in France. For Wilson, the last fight still remained. At the end of 1918 he traveled to Paris to negotiate the terms of the final peace treaty.

Although Wilson won the world over to his beloved League of Nations, he faced unexpected resistance at home. Felled by a stroke at the critical moment, the president failed to convince the Senate to ratify the Treaty of Versailles, with tragic consequences.

"World War I was the soil from which so many things today really grew, starting with America's place in the world," said AMERICAN EXPERIENCE Executive Producer Mark Samels. "Before the war, America was isolated and uninvolved in world affairs. After the war, America stepped onto the world stage, and that continues today with our troops becoming involved in conflicts around the world. The current debate on the balance between national security and civil liberties also began with World War I. The debate over immigration reached its apex during World War I. The film is not only about what happened 100 years ago, but how what happened then transformed our nation and the world in ways still being felt today."
