

Position: Multimedia Journalist, WNIN-FM, Evansville

Full time, non-exempt

WNIN, the NPR/PBS affiliate in Evansville, Indiana is looking for the next multi-media journalist to join our award-winning staff. Our new facility on the banks of the Ohio River in downtown Evansville is the perfect place to launch a substantial journalism career.

The goal of our community-licensed station is to raise audience, revenue and recognition so the residents of our service area can get the public media they deserve. We have had tremendous success in the past several years hiring promising, regional talent who want to live and work in this area while pursuing satisfying careers of prominence in the profession.

Our significant projects include ¿Qué Pasa Midwest?, Side Effects Public Media health reporting and in-depth investigations that prompt change. For example, in 2015 we received a national Edward R. Murrow award for our coverage of autistic teens. That type of journalism and recognition is possible when you work with us.

Duties:

- Enterprise and produce local stories that matter to you and our listeners, using all the current tools of the trade including video, audio, data, online and social media.
- Local government beat coverage.
- Coordinate with Indiana Public Broadcasting Stations (IPBS) on reporting local stories for the statewide network and filing our carriage reports with them.
- Contribute to WNIN's Creative Core in joint journalism projects with WNIN-TV
- Back-up on-air hosting in emergencies.
- Participate in station events and programs when needed.

Requirements:

- Bachelor's degree or higher in journalism.
- Demonstrated experience producing multi-media journalism projects of substance.
- A strong desire to shape local, public media journalism and serve the community
- Self-Starter. While we want team players, we also want stars who are driven to serve the community. The successful candidate will understand and embrace the balance between them.

Deadline: Position open until filled.
