A letter from the CEO

As our cover photo shows, when MPT’s longtime TV director Dwight Phillips presides over a production from his front-row post in our control room, he guides the camera work of up to 10 separate studio camera operators – calling the shots, as the saying goes. But he’s also directing the activity of a teleprompter operator, a lighting director, sound technicians, video engineers, videotape operators, and floor directors. He keeps an eye on the clock, the on-screen talent, often a studio audience, and recorded segments that need to be introduced – at just the right moment – into a production.

Surrounded by a skilled production team, he provides the right direction and gets the job done for the citizens of Maryland who are, first and foremost, the reason we’re here.

On a much larger scale, talented men and women are moving Maryland Public Television in the right direction for citizen service as this report on our 2015 performance clearly demonstrates. In a year when we bid farewell to two cherished colleagues who were taken from us too soon and when we wished a happy retirement to eight others, the MPT team continued to serve a growing audience of viewers. We achieved an all-time-high in membership, earned substantial accolades and industry awards, and significantly increased our ability to bring TV programs and educational opportunities and engagement events to the community.

To a large extent, our donors, members, and friends, partner with MPT’s talented staff to make all this possible. We send our sincere thanks for all you do to support us as we move our 49-year-old organization in the right direction – for you.

Larry D. Unger
President & CEO

Mission statement

… to educate, entertain and enlighten the people of Maryland and beyond through creative programs and services of the highest quality, delivered through traditional public broadcasting and new multimedia technologies. MPT’s commitment to excellence, innovation, diversity, and the values of Marylanders is essential to this mission.

To point to a direction is to suggest movement, and in FY15, MPT moved aggressively to extend its service to citizens of Maryland across a wide spectrum of activities and projects. But, before any service commences, the fundamentals must be in place and the infrastructure strong. At MPT, those fundamentals can be summarized in a sentence: The mission remains paramount, the team is energized, our statewide impact is growing, and the balance sheet is strong.

In FY15, MPT remained focused on Maryland citizens. That focus has not changed in the 49 years since the establishing legislation created the forerunner of today’s Maryland Public Television in 1966. We remained eighth largest of 161 member stations of the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) and continued our coveted role as Maryland’s only statewide broadcaster. The station’s broadcast signal continued to reach citizens in all corners of the Free State as well as viewers in parts of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

With 146 approved positions filled with motivated individuals – a staff significantly reduced from its level a decade ago – the MPT team remained energized, enthusiastic, and mission-driven. While financial pressures on the station did not lessen during FY15, we delivered a balanced budget of $29 million for the year and aggressively sought and secured increased revenues in the areas of membership and corporate support along with some extraordinary major and planned giving donations.

Maryland Public Television FY15 budget

Approved by the Maryland Department of Budget and Management, MPT’s budget below was in effect for the year July 1, 2014 through June 30, 2015. Dollar amounts below are in millions.

$1.35 a year. The federal investment in public television represents an investment of $1.35 per American each year. Government funding, accomplished through the Corporation for Public Broadcasting in the form of Community Service Grants to public TV stations, is truly essential to the survival and success of noncommercial, educational public service media in America. Independent studies validate that, in considering the use of their tax dollars, Americans judge PBS to provide an excellent value that’s second only to military defense (source: CARAVAN ORC International, January 2013).

$1.40 a year. The State of Maryland investment in MPT represents spending of $1.40 per Marylander each year. MPT returns about $3 for every dollar of the state’s $8.0 million appropriation.

An MPT snapshot

The right direction for connecting to community

In FY15, social media engagement and regular email communications allowed MPT to stay connected with its constituents throughout Maryland and beyond.

Viewers and members connected with MPT via these platforms:

MPT also offered free subscriptions for a variety of e-newsletters to keep readers informed about programming and activities of interest, foremost among them Primetime Spotlight, a weekly mailing that provides sought-after highlights of upcoming programming.

Revenues $27.3

- membership $6.2 23%
- grants $2.4 9%
- State of Maryland appropriation $8.0 29%
- Corporation for Public Broadcasting $3.0 11%
- corporate support & production funding $7.7 28%

Expenses $27.3

- fundraising & outreach $4.6 17%
- administration $2.0 7%
- production & program acquisition $13.3 49%
- transmission & facilities $4.4 16%
- education services $2.5 9%
- member & community relations $.5 2%
On October 5, 1969, MPT went on the air with its telecast of Nightmare’s Child. From that simple broadcast from a single transmission tower in Owings Mills, MPT expanded to its present-day lineup of three separate channels (MPT-HD, MPT2, and V-me, a Spanish language channel) transmitted from six statewide towers and carried on numerous cable and satellite systems.

In FY15, an average of 1.7 million viewers tuned in monthly to view the quality of television that earned MPT 17 nominations and eight awards in regional Emmy® competition and a variety of other industry honors. MPT develops and creates this programming in our studios and at remote sites across Maryland or acquires productions from other producers with our Maryland audience in mind. MPT’s productions in FY15 appear below.

Local productions

The FY15 total of 245 individual, locally produced programs*, accounting for 128 hours of broadcast time, included these productions:

Moving the youngest viewers in a safe TV direction

From its earliest days, MPT has provided instructional TV programs to help fulfill the station’s commitment to education. For three hours each day, seven days a week, on our MPT2 secondary channel, we offer programs that are targeted to teachers and parents. This service accounts for nearly 1,100 televised hours each year. Samples of what educators are viewing during these hours include the courses “Biography of America” and “Making Civics Work.”

For the young viewers themselves, MPT airs children’s programs whose content helps prepare the youngsters for formal schooling. On-air content for children is, of course, free, safe and trusted by parents and child care professionals. This programming airs on MPT-HD for seven hours each weekday and for three hours on Sunday mornings. Children’s programs also air on MPT2 for five hours on Saturday mornings and for one hour on Sunday mornings. All told, children’s programs accounted for 2,122 hours on MPT in FY15.
Enabling viewers beyond the TV screen

The station’s primary online platform, www.mpt.org, continues to be an increasingly robust extension of MPT’s on-air content as well as a critical hub for the station’s public service and conversations with the community. This site is, of course, one of three principal websites created and maintained by MPT (see sidebar).

During the year, MPT created program- or project-specific websites to give citizens more detailed information about particular MPT offerings. Examples are the websites created for the MPT Salutes Vietnam Veterans initiative and for the series Steven Raichlen’s Project Smoke that was developed in FY15.

MPT content is accessed by citizens through an online video player that in FY15 accounted for 405,208 page views made by 124,652 users. Such programs as Downton Abbey and Maryland Farm & Harvest were seen on the video player at locations and times desired by the viewer – a genuine departure from traditional TV viewing of programs at scheduled times.

MPT continued to build its own YouTube® presence, too. In FY15, the MPT channel garnered 232,646 views (representing 886,941 minutes of viewing), while the companion MotorWeek YouTube® channel attracted 13,062,740 views (representing 43,298,850 minutes of viewing).

Finding MPT content

In FY15, viewers could see MPT content in traditional and emerging ways including:
- television (our live signal received by viewers over-the-air, on cable, or via satellite)
- tablet/phone (selected programs are viewable on mobile devices via PBS and PBS KIDS apps)
- web online video player on demand (selected programs)
- video on demand (VOD) available via cable TV systems
- on DVDs available in the MPT Store (online at https://mpt-shop.myshopify.com)
- on MPT’s YouTube channel (selected clips from shows)

But in FY15, the station also set the stage for its first-ever app, researching features likely to appeal to viewers and members and conducting tests to ensure that the app would be user-friendly when introduced in late calendar year 2015.

In FY15, MPT recorded a remarkable number of page views on three main sites:
- www.mpt.org
  3,030,688 views by 567,668 unduplicated users
- www.MotorWeek.org
  4,407,857 views by 1,325,204 unduplicated users
- www.Thinkport.org
  18,442,462 views in 1,856,040 visitors sessions

TOTAL VIEWS: 25,881,007
During 2015, MPT received the following awards and designations for its work:

An Emmy® note: In the past decade, MPT productions and personnel have earned 57 regional Emmys®. Since its launch in 1969, MPT has also been recipient of four national Emmy® Awards.

Synopsis

In regional Emmy® ceremonies in June 2015, MPT’s audio team contributed to the station’s overall tally of eight Emmys® with three statuettes. (Left left to right) David Wainwright captured his audio post-production award for a composite of his work, while Jillian Kuchman, post-production audio technician, and Jim Bigwood, audio supervisor, earned their awards for work on D-Day at 70: A Salute to America’s Greatest Generation.

Baltimore’s own Ursula Ricks (right) and her band, Ursula Ricks Project, were among featured acts in the 2015 Concert for the Chesapeake Bay which wrapped up MPT’s annual Chesapeake Bay Week.* MPT’s Yolanda Vazquez co-hosted the one-hour concert telecast.
When the Maryland General Assembly established the Maryland Educational-Cultural Television Commission in 1966, it intended that the new entity, the forerunner of MPT, would provide educational programming throughout Maryland. The education mission has never left MPT’s agenda. In FY15, the centerpiece of MPT’s educational initiatives, Thinkport.org continued to serve as the trusted gateway to a robust collection of MPT-created multimedia resources, education technology tools, and online courses for PreK-12 educators.

MPT’s product offerings blend the best of curricular material with innovative digital technology to meet the evolving needs of today’s educators, students, child care providers and families. The same expertise is used in the development and delivery of community and school-based workshops, trainings and special events.

In 2015, Thinkport welcomed more than 1,856,000 visits and garnered 18.4 million page views. To date, there are approximately 48,000 registered users of the site, though registration is not a requirement.

Creating courses

Online course offerings expanded in 2015 serving the needs of 1,523 K-12 educators and child care providers through 68 credit-bearing courses.

Early education

Tapped by the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) to produce a new online developmental screening course for child care providers in Maryland, MPT is serving as the sole course provider and facilitator. The online training opportunity, reaching 30,000 care providers, meets a state requirement that takes effect July 1, 2016.

Local child care providers, staff and directors received professional training through 10 online courses. In addition, 500 learners earned Maryland State Department of Education approved “clock hours” toward licensing or credentialing.

K-12

Over the last year, MPT continued to focus on enhancing the professional learning opportunities for 1,023 K-12 educators enrolled in a total of 58 online courses.

Early childhood education

Recognized as a state leader and partner in education technology, MPT has been called upon to develop and oversee several educational projects for the Maryland State Department of Education. For example, MPT was selected to manage the design, development, and delivery of a new web portal for MSDE’s Early Childhood Development Division. An expert team was assembled to produce an upgraded site to better support child care and early learning communities in Maryland.

MPT is completing work on a national out-of-school-time curriculum using PBS KIDS online games, interactives, and video clips to help build math and literacy skills for children ages 4-8. Designed to support out-of-school programs, the learning-rich activities are utilized in both afterschool and summer learning environments. Also in FY15, MPT showcased PBS KIDS resources through special community events and school-based programs in Baltimore City.
For instance, MPT participated in programs at Port Discovery Children’s Museum, connecting 4,300 children and families to PBS KIDS Lab resources and activities via an on-site mobile lab. Through MPT’s strong partnerships with afterschool programs in Baltimore City, 1,300 children and families received valuable resources, outreach, and training. Under the federally funded Ready To Learn umbrella, MPT worked closely with the Child First Authority, Inc., and Village Learning Place, Inc. to provide rewarding early learning opportunities. Participating programs also received new mobile technology (computers and tablets), on-site staff training, and an introduction to PBS KIDS resources reaching 450 children in afterschool programs in seven of the 20 Baltimore City Community Schools.

In May 2015, MPT was honored with a Core Values Award from the Child First Authority, Inc. for its exceptional work in afterschool programs under the Ready To Learn initiative.

Highlights of the year

Continuous growth and technological innovation are the hallmarks of MPT education. Key highlights from 2015 include:

Race to the Top

Race to the Top (RTTT) is a $4.35 billion U.S. Department of Education competitive grant created to spur and reward innovation and reforms in state and local district education. MPT has worked closely with MSDE to develop curriculum-based products and services for K-12 teachers, students and families under the federal RTTT school reform initiative.

This year, MPT focused on the production of 94 interactive learning modules for middle and high school students. Available on Thinkport, the modules strengthen student learning in English Language Arts, Algebra I, and literacy skills for science and social studies.

American Graduate

Building on last year’s activities, MPT expanded work on the Corporation for Public Broadcasting-funded American Graduate: Let’s Make it Happen initiative designed to raise awareness around the importance of staying in school and earning a high school diploma. Through a new local recognition program, MPT deepened community connections and recognized Maryland “Champions” who go the extra mile to support at-risk youth.

Project partner Wide Angle Youth Media joined MPT again this year, capturing the compelling video and photo stories of Baltimore City youth working to overcome daily obstacles to stay in school. These stories are woven into MPT’s newly designed American Graduate online portal.

Under the same project, MPT held two documentary film screenings and panel discussions surrounding the topics of youth homelessness and public school reform in disadvantaged districts. Baltimore’s Reginald F. Lewis Museum and the Catonsville (MD) Public Library served as new project partners and program hosts for the screenings.

James Baker

To coincide with the launch of the new PBS documentary James Baker: The Man Who Made Washington Work, MPT was selected by John Hesse Productions to develop and launch a national companion website for the film. Geared to middle and high school students, the site blends video footage from the documentary with interactive activities to support learning and teaching around politics, negotiation, and diplomacy.
In FY15, MPT continued its substantial commitment to and work on what is the station’s single-largest undertaking in its history: MPT Salutes Vietnam Veterans.

This multi-year, multi-faceted project was launched in 2012 and culminates in 2016. It is designed to thank men and women from Maryland who served in the military in the Vietnam era. But it is also intended to educate today’s citizens about the valor and sacrifice of those who served in an unpopular war. Key elements of MPT’s salute are a three-hour documentary film; a two-day weekend special public event; a statewide traveling exhibit; and a significant education component to bring the subject into Maryland classrooms.

Vietnam veteran Nathaniel Howard, Sr. checks out his portion of the Vietnam exhibit that is on display at libraries, public gathering places, and organizations around Maryland. The exhibit promotes MPT’s 2016 documentary and the major two-day public event called LZ Maryland on June 18-19 at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium.
In its largest-ever initiative, MARYLAND PUBLIC TELEVISION salutes the men and women who served during the Vietnam War.

Already years in the making, this initiative culminates in 2016 with the broadcast of the multi-part documentary, Maryland Vietnam War Stories, in May AND a public weekend event — LZ Maryland — in June.

Vietnam War veterans Wayne Miller and Jane McCarthy met at MPT studios in April 2015 and, with more than a dozen other veterans, saw their sections of the MPT Salutes Vietnam Veterans Traveling Exhibit which is working its way around Maryland through June 2016 to draw attention to MPT’s Vietnam project and forthcoming documentary film. The exhibit features display banners, war artifacts, and opportunities for adult and child visitors to craft messages to veterans. Venues and schedules are available at mpt.org/travelingexhibit.
Throughout its history, MPT has served as a convener of community whether on the air, online, or in towns and cities statewide. MPT collaborates with local organizations to connect citizens to local and online resources. The goal is to foster a two-way relationship with both current and prospective viewers in the region. We accomplish this through events and community outreach projects. MPT either stages outreach events or participates in other organizations’ events year-round, seeking opportunities to reach a multitude of individuals over a spectrum of age, gender, ethnicity, and interests.

Many outreach projects MPT undertakes are supported through grants that we seek in order to be able to serve our communities better. Here are some community engagement highlights from FY15:

- The Big Read program encourages reading and community engagement through a host of events surrounding a selected book. Recent projects have engaged veterans and others in Frederick and Baltimore counties.

- Thinking Money is a multifaceted project focused on financial literacy that has included two productions, live audience discussions, online access, and exhibits – all aimed at reaching citizens to educate them about money and financial well-being.

- MPT celebrated the Season 5 premiere of the celebrated Downton Abbey series in January 2015 with a Baltimore screening event, complete with costume contests and “selfie” photos in front of a large photo backdrop of Highclere Castle. More than 200 enthusiastic fans were treated to a sneak preview of the new season.

- In April 2015, MPT hosted a screening of the film Last Days in Vietnam and brought it to dozens of Vietnam-era veterans. Attendees at MPT studios were linked to viewers attending the screening nationwide through an online engagement tool. At least five other public screenings were held during the year featuring other documentaries.

During FY15, Maryland Public Television used its expertise to perform work on behalf of a variety of state agencies and other clients to help these groups fulfill their own missions. This work for hire included:

- Providing narration and video editing for approximately 15 client-provided video modules targeting nurses to educate them about breastfeeding under an initiative of the Maryland Woman, Infants and Children (WIC) Program’s Nutrition and Breastfeeding Support Services unit.

- Providing fiber transmission service for commercial clients and media. These clients included the Fox News Channel, ESPN, MSNBC, Major League Baseball, CNN, CNBC, FOX Sports 1, and The Sports Network (TSN).

- Performing a variety of up-converted dubs of PBS programs for the local public television distribution and tracking firm cre-a-tv Studios (which has hired MPT to feed selected programs to PBS in fall 2015 via satellite).

- Creating public service announcements for the “Child Find” program of the Maryland State Department of Education’s Division of Special Education/Early Intervention Services.

- Producing the annual “Teacher of the Year” gala for the Maryland State Department of Education.

- Creating three separate instructional videos in collaboration with MPT’s Education Division. The videos were produced for Maryland educators to support best teaching practices. The work was performed for the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) under the Race to the Top grant received by MPT.

- Creating and producing nine separate videos targeting Maryland consumers for the Maryland Insurance Administration’s website.

- Creating and producing for the General Assembly of Maryland’s Department of Legislative Services two versions of a video shown to persons touring the State House in Annapolis.
MPT alumnus Thomas Lee Wiley (seated) gathers with family members as he and a dozen other former employees were inducted as the Class of 2014 into MPT’s Alumni Honor Wall at ceremonies in October 2014.

In FY15, approximately 21 high school and college interns spent time learning TV production or other skills at MPT. Shown here on a public affairs shoot in Columbia, MD, are (left to right) intern John Wolf, intern Becky Blackstone, MPT videographer Michael Orsborn, Evan Lutz, CEO and co-founder startup firm Hungry Harvest, and News & Public Affairs associate producer Roxana Bardan. The interview aired in a “Startup Spotlight” segment of MPT’s Your Money & Business in June 2015.

The a cappella group Pentatonix was joined by singer Melissa Etheridge, country music’s Kenny Rogers, recording artist Jordin Sparks, and Grammy®-winning band Train as a featured act during Star-Spangled Spectacular: Bicentennial of our National Anthem at Baltimore’s Pier Six Pavilion on September 13, 2014. Sparks and actor John Lithgow co-hosted the two-hour concert special broadcast live as part of the PBS Great Performances series. The TV event was a highlight of a weeklong celebration of the 200th anniversary of the national anthem. The Baltimore harbor, replete with tall ships and naval vessels, served as a stunning backdrop. Star-Spangled Spectacular: Bicentennial of our National Anthem was created and executive-produced by MPT.

Segments of MPT’s series Maryland Farm & Harvest were captured on a DVD accompanying a book for elementary school students produced by the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation, Inc. The nonprofit is using the book and DVD to help youngsters understand the importance of agriculture in their lives.

Four stars were added to MPT’s Walk of Fame in spring 2015 as the station continued saluting men and women who’ve brought distinction to MPT broadcasts through their on-air roles. The 2015 honorees were (left to right) Natalie Seltz, “Miss Smythe” on Wall Street Week With Louis Rukeyser; Greg Otto and Alec Webb, longtime announcers for many of the station’s most prominent productions; and Lou Davis, State Circle reporter whose journalism career has spanned five decades.

MEMBERS OF MARYLAND PUBLIC TELEVISION

More than 65,000 persons support MPT as voluntary paid members. Although space prevents us from listing each by name, we thankfully acknowledge their endorsement of our work. We send special thanks to those who’ve chosen to be sustaining members. Their ongoing monthly contributions provide a steady, reliable stream of income that enables MPT to purchase and produce first-rate dramas, world-class musical performances, in-depth public affairs reporting, and local productions that capture the stories of our area’s attractions, history, and culture.

A viewer writes to Maryland Farm & Harvest …

My wife, Nancy, and I love your program and even watch reruns because they are so well produced and truly describe the rural character of Maryland’s Eastern Shore. A program like yours should be produced to celebrate rural life in every state in the USA. Thank you for all you do.

MPT & YOUR COMMUNITY
The following organizations were featured during FY15 in 90-second broadcast spots airing on MPT-HD and MPT2. MPT is happy to provide on-air exposure to these fine organizations that serve our community:
American Foundation for Suicide Prevention
Baltimore County Monuments Committee
Baltimore Humane Society Centerstage
Chesapeake Bay Environmental Center
Chesapeake Shakespeare Company
Everyman Theatre
Hippodrome Theater
Izaak Walton League of America
Maryland Federation of Art
Mission of Mercy
The Patricia & Arthur Modell Performing Arts Center at The Lyric
Retired RaceHorse Project
The Allegany Arts Council
The School of the Incarnation, Gambrills
Urban Alliance

PLEDGE VOLUNTEER GROUPS
MPT is grateful to have the on-air assistance of a variety of organizations that pitched in to assist on our on-air fundraising appeals. For FY15, our pledge telephones were staffed by 40 groups that logged an impressive 136 hours of service on roughly 42 pledge dates. Among them were:
American Sewing Guild
Baltimore Area Disc Jockey Association
Baltimore Humane Society
B-More Engaged

Chesapeake Shakespeare Company
Dulaney High Key Club
Frederick Festival of the Arts
Harford County Public Library
Izaak Walton League of America
Jewish Museum of Maryland
Mission of Mercy
Movies & More Crew
PBS Development Department
Pumpkin Theatre
Royal Caribbean
The First Suit Project
The Mitzvah
U.S. Public Health Service

VOLUNTEERS HELP MPT EXTEND ITS SERVICE
Individuals and organizations who support MPT through volunteerism embrace the ideals of public television and public service. We appreciate the contribution of our volunteers. Whether it is helping with administrative tasks at our headquarters, helping us extend hospitality at a community event, or welcoming citizens to taping events on our campus, MPT volunteers provide service and make a positive impact on our community. Thank you!

THE MPT STAFF
MPT’s full- and part-time staff members do their jobs well. But in FY15, most went beyond their job descriptions to demonstrate exceptional community spirit and generosity. This is a recap of our employees’ personal commitments to good citizenship and support for important community causes.
• donations to 2014 Maryland Charity Campaign workplace giving - $6,253
• units of blood donated in annual MPT blood drive – 23
• CPR training – 3 classes, 40 staff enrolled

Workplace giving benefits MPT

Your employer may participate in a workplace giving program. If so, please consider selecting the MPT Foundation, Inc., a 501(c)(3) organization, as your charity of choice during your employer’s annual campaign.

When the MPT Foundation receives a gift from a workplace giving program, we use that donation to fund the programming and activities described in this report.

Here are the designation numbers for most of the workplace giving campaigns in our region. If you don’t see the MPT Foundation in your employer’s campaign literature, please ask if you can write us in! Our EIN number is: 52-6002033
