General Counsel

Andrew Levine has served as general counsel for Maryland Public Television since 2004.

In this position he provides legal oversight for all aspects of MPT's operations including program development, personnel matters, procurement, and government relations.

Among his responsibilities is the preparation or review of a variety of documents from television and production underwriting agreements to artist contracts, licensing arrangements, and vendor agreements. In addition, Mr. Levine routinely reviews television content to ensure that it complies with FCC standards and MPT's own editorial guidelines. He represents MPT before the Maryland General Assembly where he has drafted and lobbied successfully for legislation on MPT's behalf.

Mr. Levine earned a bachelor's degree in history from Brown University and a master's in Russian studies from Georgetown University. He holds a juris doctor degree from American University's Washington College of Law.
