

Have No Fear, the Sisters are Here!

By

Grace and Samantha are sisters. With their dog, Eva, they like to save animals who need help.

One hot summer day, they got their backpacks ready. The girls packed a snack and their binoculars. They went out on an adventure to save animals with their dog.

They started walking towards the woods. The girls found a gray mouse who said, "help, help, please. That mean mouse took my cheese."

Grace and Samantha said "have no fear, the sisters are here!" Grace said, "we have cheese in our backpack." She gave the cheese to the gray mouse and they went on their way.

Then, they looked through their binoculars and saw a red robin that said, "My nest is on the ground and I need help from someone that's around."

"Have no fear, the sisters are here!" they said.
"We can tie your nest back up in the tree with the purple and pink ribbons in our hair." Then they were on their way.

Next, they found a dry, orange newt that said,
"I know we just met but I need some water to get wet."

"Have no fear, the sisters are here!" said Grace and Samantha. Then Grace said "We have a great pond at our house and we can bring you there. Hop on my backpack."

When they got back to the house the girls let the newt go in the pond. The newt swam away and everyone was happy.
