Happy November!

Hello Parents! The most powerful ways to develop children’s literacy skills are also the simplest: talk to them, listen to them, read to them and write with them. When caring adults talk to kids about the world — from how recipes work to the rules of baseball — they are planting seeds of knowledge that will help kids grow into curious thinkers, readers and writers. Read for the Record 2019

Jumpstart’s Read for the Record brings together millions of adults and children around the world each year to read the same book on the same day in order to raise awareness about the critical importance of early literacy. This year, Jumpstart is celebrating our 14th anniversary of Read for the Record on November 7, 2019, with the book Thank You, Omu! Fall leaves come in many shades of red, orange, yellow, and brown. Together with your child, take a walk around your neighborhood to find hay, acorns, decorative pumpkins and fall leaves that match the colors in this fall color wheel. Draw what you find on the color chart, or if the leaf is already loose from its tree, you can gently tape it to the chart.
